TOUR DIRECTOR AND FACULTY

Dr. Theora England

This intimate journey to places where such a vast treasury of English literature and drama was inspired and created will be directed by Dr. Theora England, professor of Speech and Drama at Northwestern College since 1941. She received her degree at the University of Minnesota in 1964 and has broad experience in the many aspects of theatre. She has traveled extensively and has conducted numerous successful drama tours. She will be assisted in the conduct of the tour and seminars by artists, critics, and professors at various stopping points.

The tour itinerary covers areas highly appealing to a broad range of cultural interest. Your participation, either for academic credit and enjoyment, or just for enjoyment, is cordially invited.

ACADEMIC CREDIT: Northwestern College offers six hours of undergraduate credit in connection with this tour. Basically, the credit offered is in Speech 300, but by special prior arrangement, the credit may also be applied to courses in English or Humanities. Tuition fees are $40.00 per credit hour. Northwestern is fully accredited and credit granted may be transferred to other colleges. Northwestern offers a major and a minor in Speech and Drama. If credit for the tour is desired, students will attend regularly scheduled seminars during the tour. At the end of the tour the student will prepare a paper, on a topic previously approved by the instructor, and will submit it by October 14, 1972.
