Dear Dr. England,

I would just like to begin by saying that you have probably had more good influence on changing my character and making me ready for the "after college" world than any other teacher I have ever had. You probably don't even remember this, but one statement you casually made has really been an influence on me as a teacher and church youth leader and that is "you have to truly love them first." I think that's what made you such an influential teacher was that you loved your students.

The activities you motivated in college were some of the highlights of my life such as "Ardi", "Pygmalion", "Under the Gaslight", plus all the activities of Alpha Psi. Another thing I still do that I learned from you is to make notes to myself of things I have to do! You and Harry will always be known as two great people and we hope to visit you sometime this summer.

Love
